Further details

In the wake of Storm Corrie, high northwesterly winds will continue over parts of eastern and northeastern England to begin with today. The strongest gusts will mostly occur over hills and, more especially, in North Sea coastal areas where gusts of 50-60 mph are possible. Inland, gusts will reach 40-50 mph for some. These high winds will ease later this morning.

Reason for update

Warning area trimmed eastwards and southwards to reflect extent of wind hazard first thing on Monday morning.
